DETAILED ACTION

1. This office action is in response to a communication filed on 03/20/06. Claim 1 is pending. The amendment submitted on 03/20/06 has been entered.

Response to Arguments

2. Applicant should submit an argument under the heading "Remarks" pointing out disagreements with the examiner's contentions. Applicant must also discuss the references applied against the claims, explaining how the claims avoid the references or distinguish from them.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

3. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claim 1 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Vulk (USPN 5892499).

Vulk teaches as shown in FIG. 11 a computer keyboard 52 having left end 53 and right end 54, and illustrates as shown in FIG. 12 that the bottom-rear portion of the computer keyboard

Art Unit: 2629

52 has leg recesses 33, grab handles 32, and stomach recess 31. Vulk further teaches the side view of computer keyboard 52 as shown in FIG. 17 having base 67, front 94 and rear 93. Vulk also teaches a forearm support 2, which is adjacent to both raised rear edge 42 and convex declined surface 26 such that the convex declined surface 26 is intended to arrange keys 96 relative to the user's hands, and keys 96 may be actuated by a more natural grasping motion of the user's fingers and/or hands.

Vulk does not specifically teach “an interchangeable cushion that can be adjusted for the user specific optimum tilt and comfort by form fitting to the users lap”.

Vulk on the other hand teaches providing manually actuated ergonomic interfaces (E.I.'s) which have surfaces that are made from "soft" surfaces that provide cushioning to all parts of the user which may come into contact with the E.I., thus increasing the comfort level of the user over extended periods of use (see No.8- 9 under “Objects and Advantages”).

It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to utilize Vulk's manually actuated ergonomic interfaces with soft surfaces for the purpose of effecting cushioning suitable to a desired part of the body (see No. 9 under “Objects and Advantages”).

With respect to the size of a “wood tray” and the connection arrangement between “interchangeable cushion” and the back of “wood tray”, it is a matter of design choice and one of ordinary skill would have ascertained that the size and connection arrangement are available in a variety of ways.

Conclusion

4. THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the mailing date of this final action.
